NO. 79

NEWS OF THE VICINAGE.

Mrs. Malinda Howard died in Bell county at the age of 102 years.

J. H. Hagan is closing out his stock of drugs at Livingston and will locate elsewhere.

W. A. Sudduth, a Louisville lawyer, died suddenly at Shakerstown, where he had gone on business.

Only two prisoners were sent to the penitentiary from Pulaski at the last court and they are Negroes.

At Richmond, Dec. 8, Kentucky University, State College, Central University and Kentucky Wesleyan will compete in oratory.

Andy Watson, the outlaw who escaped from an officer in Bell county, writes some parties at Middlesboro if they will divide the reward with him he will give himself up and take his chance of making his escape later.

Messrs. Geo. A. Hughes and Harry Crutcheff, of McKinney, visited E. H. Hansford, and family Sunday and Monday. They were accompanied on their return by Miss Georgia Hansford for a visit with relatives.—Somerset Paragon.

Mr. W. B. King, the slave man, this week bought out the slave factory of Salsberry & Co. at Flat Lick. This makes Mr. King in control of all the slaves made in Bell county, with the exception of a small quantity, handled by some local parties at Middlesboro, which does not amount to one tenth of the business.—Cumberland Courier.

Mr. King is a son of Hon. B. B. King, of this county.

Speaking of the death of John B. Embury, of yellow fever in Cuba, the Richmond Climax says: On October court day, Mr. Embury was in Richmond mingling with his friends, for here as elsewhere he was very popular. He met Mr. W. W. Watts, a prominent citizen of this place, and owner of a large cattle ranch in Texas, who advised Mr. Embury not to go to Cuba to live because, said he, a man insured to a climate like Kentucky can not live safely in the tropics. Said he: "If you go, you will catch yellow fever and be a dead man in three days." How well Mr. Watts knew what he was talking about is shown by the sad event recorded.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

Peter Sells, the rich circus man, is suing his wife for divorce, at Indianapolis.

Mike Harrison, aged 69, and Miss Bettie Lawson, 29, were married at Paducah.

A. G. Myers and Miss Ermintha Ball celebrated Thanksgiving by marrying at Elton Ball's.

James Griffin and Miss Maggie James had their destinies united at Ephraim James' yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Overstreet celebrated their golden wedding at Harrodsburg this week.

John Offutt, son of Capt. A. Offutt, and Miss Imogene Breeding, one of Lebanon's prettiest girls, were married Wednesday.

M. G. Leaper, aged 24, and Miss Nannie Vinson, sweet 16, were married at the court-house Wednesday by Judge James P. Bailey.

Lt. Harry Wybrant, formerly of Richmond, and Miss Elizabeth Williams, daughter of an army officer, are shortly to be married.

Arch S. Wright, of Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Antoinette Bowman, of Lebanon, were married at the Methodist church at the latter place.

Friends here have received announcements of the marriage of Benjamin Berry Howard, of Carlisle, to Miss Lucilee Allen, of Middlesboro. The bride has frequently visited the Misses Woods here.

W. P. Scott and Miss Ollie Stevens, of Danville, drove to Stanford Tuesday and were married at Mrs. E. L. Reinhart's, sister of the bride, by Rev. J. R. Savage, of Danville. Like her sister the bride is a handsome and deserving woman and the groom stands high as a business man and as a gentleman.

BRAVE MEN FALL.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, pains in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, of Louisville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at Penny's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

The Buffalo express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad was run into by an accommodation train at Paterson, N. J. Six persons were killed and 20 or more injured.

COUGHED 25 YEARS.

I suffered 25 years with a cough, and spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and for medicine to no avail until I used Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. This remedy makes weak lungs strong. It has saved my life.—J. B. Rosell, Grantsburg, Ill.

A dispatch from London says that President Ben Rich and about 40 Mormon elders will begin a meeting at the Riley Hotel there tomorrow.

LANCASTER.

Miss Florence Harris is visiting her brother William at Carlisle.

Capt. and Mrs. Louis Landrum went to Lexington to give thanks.

Mr. James Totten, the hustling machine man, was here Wednesday.

Gillis Prather thanked the jury for the verdict of 21 years in the penitentiary.

Mr. R. E. Thompson sold 34 dressed turkeys on Wednesday at 10c. Several weighed from 20 to 24 lbs.

T. S. Elkin has sold his groceries, butcher shop and fixtures to Gastineau & Co. of Burgin. Mr. Elkin is now a retired capitalist.

Judge R. J. Breckinridge, Hon. R. C. Warren, J. B. Paxton and Robert Harding were among the visiting attorneys this week.

Squire J. N. Denny says that his neighbor, Mr. George Jennings, reports a sheep-killing dog in the vicinity of Point Leavel that drags a sled with him to bring in his prey.

Kentucky is holding her breath for the action of the State election commissioners and it is hoped that the result will be satisfactory to all parties.

As they are honest and capable and it is their duty to investigate the matter fully.

I am under obligations to Mr. E. C. Walton, the hustling business manager of the INTERIOR JOURNAL, for reporting the happenings here on Monday, as I am a member of the jury and am unable to get items away from the courtroom.

I had another invitation to eat turkey Thursday, this time with Dr. B. F. Walter, but I was forced to decline.

Many thanks will be offered, but the best way to make us thankful is to put us on light diet for about one week. We do not know how to appreciate blessings until we are deprived of them.

Mrs. G. M. Patterson attended the burial of Mrs. F. S. Pollitt, at Harrodsburg, Wednesday. Her husband is an eminent minister of the Methodist Church and presiding elder of this district.

Rev. Robinson, pastor of the Methodist church in this city, preached Thanksgiving sermon at the Presbyterian church.

At the convening of circuit court all the officers and attorneys were on hand ready to do their part towards the administration of justice.

Judge Saffley's charge to the grand jury was clear and comprehensive, defining the different offenses and the duties of the jury in conducting its investigations.

In his charge on violations of the election law, he took occasion to say that the poor man, who sold his vote for a small sum, was guilty of no greater offense than the man in the higher walks of life who sells his vote for the promise of a position.

This statement was especially noticeable because it was the statement of a fact that has not been presented so forcibly.

The grand jury consisted of T. B. Robinson, foreman; J. F. Pettus, Robt. Conn, Henry Patterson, John Hill, D. M. Lackey, T. I. Herring, G. T. Ballard, John Anderson, Jr., John G. Doty, W. B. Ray, and Jesse Doty.

The following compose the petit jury: M. F. Rout, T. J. Hatcher, O. J. Layton, M. D. Hughes, Wm. Stone, C. W. Mitchell, Bryant Ballard, Edward Norris, W. R. Cook, Eugene Berkele, Jack Adams, T. B. Grow, J. L. Warner, H. C. Arnold, J. M. Hulst, Hunter House, Edward Price, J. N. Denny, A. D. Hughes, James Guyon, J. T. Holtz, Sam Archer, Eb Cook and Dave Thompson.

No cases of any importance were reached on Monday. On Tuesday the case of the Commonwealth against Gillis Prather, charged with the murder of Robt. Burton, at Paint Lick in July, an account of which was published in the INTERIOR JOURNAL, was called, and a jury was impaneled in the afternoon.

The Georgia woman's suffrage association, which is in session at Atlanta, has adopted a resolution petitioning Congress not to insert the word "male" in the suffrage clause of the constitutions of the governments of Hawaii, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

A note from Rev. W. S. Grinstead at Taylorsville says: It was my sad privilege to be called to Chaplin yesterday to preach the funeral of Rev. E. H. Godbey, the pastor of our church at that place. He was only in bed from Saturday till Monday night, when he died. I closed a four years' ministry at that place 10 years ago. Since then two pastors and one pastor's wife have died in that parsonage. Bro. Godbey preached his first sermon there from the same text Bro. Hudson did, who died there the year after I left. Hudson was buried on Thanksgiving day; Godbey at Perryville today, before Thanksgiving tomorrow. "A good man has fallen," and he died in the faith and at his post.

Will Farris and Oliver Mack were the honored attendants.

She has lived an upright and honorable life and that she is highly respected and liked by all the white people who know her was fully proved by the goodly number present to see her married. Herbert Humber is a promising young darkey and by his honest, upright life has made for himself many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Humber have received quite a number of useful presents.

For sale by Craig & Hocker, Druggists.

At Modder river the Boers gathered a force of 8,000 men to stop the advance of Gen. Methuen to the relief of Kimberley. The battle began at 5:30 A. M., and lasted for 10 hours. At the end of that time the Boers had been driven back and the British had gained a foothold on the northern bank of the river. Gen. Methuen's dispatch describes the battle as "the bloodiest of the century," and says "the result was terrible."

IN the last 25 years we have written so many editorials on Thanksgiving day and so many times given its origin, purposes, &c., that we are sure our readers are fully familiar with the whole subject and not only with this time know all about the matter, but how to give thanks in the truest and best way. We therefore spare our patrons a further infliction of the very elementary lesson and proceed to say that in addition to the other good things of life we should be duly and truly thankful for the charming, sunny day that gives additional reasons for gratitude. As for ourselves we are working away, thankful that we have the health and strength to do so and for the other blessings vouchsafed to us. May they be continued to all of us that are worthy of them and the devil take those who haven't the feelings of appreciation and thankfulness for divine favors, past and present.

LIKE many of the superstitious stories of the past, the tales of great heroism of certain officers in the Philippine war are being shown to be untrue. A Kansas paper says that since the return of the officers and men of the 20th Kansas, many facts have come out that were not known before. The most important of these facts consist in the statements of men of character and reputation, men who were on the spot and who know what they are talking about, that many of the tremendous feats accredited to Gens. Funston and Metcalf occurred on paper only, the paper being in the hands of a newspaper reporter from Kansas. Funston was credited with charging the enemy with his command and having to swim a river to do so. The lie, if it be a lie, has been worked for all it is worth and Funston has been glorified and almost deified by a grateful country. And thus does another idol go a glimmering.

WE devote two pages of this issue to a report of the dedication of the Houses of Reform and the impressive ceremonies attending it, together with pictures of the buildings present and prospective, with a description of the plans and progress made. The establishment of the institution marks a new era in criminal reformation in the State, which is to be congratulated on at last having the much needed reformatory on a firm basis. No more, let us hope, will children be confined within the gloomy walls of the penitentiary, but under careful training and wise counsel at the reformatory, may they be transformed into good and useful citizens, who will be an honor to the State that has rescued them.

THE story that President McKinley had given Kentucky republicans assurances that he would declare martial law in Kentucky and send troops here in case that Taylor was not declared governor, is another silly bluff by the party, which has been working them for all they are worth and which always has them called by the democrats. Such talk is simply to scare the weak nerved. There is no danger of a fight. Goebel will be declared elected, we hope and believe, and then he will be inaugurated, all earth and republican hellions to the contrary.

THE Brownies are a sweet set of geraniums. Not satisfied with uniting with the republicans to beat Goebel, they now want to beat the nominee of the democrats for Congress in the 7th district and for that purpose have again united with them. At a meeting held at the Phoenix Hotel Tuesday it was so decided and calls were issued for precinct meetings in all the counties yesterday and for a district convention at Lexington today at noon.

THEY say that U. S. Judge Walter Evans, who is still contesting Oscar Turner's seat in Congress from the Louisville district, is not doing so with the hope of getting it, but the $2,000 and more that the body allows contestants. There are others, notably the one in this district, who have an eye to the main chance, and who without office, could not make $2,000 in 20 years.

THE democratic caucus to select candidates for speaker and other officers of the National House, will be held at Washington tomorrow. The action is merely to suggest somebody for the leader of the minority in Congress. There is no hope of electing him, as the republicans have 13 majority.

IT is said that the reason so many republicans are contesting for seats in the Legislature is with the hope that the democratic majority will be anti-Goebel and will seat them. But they are reckoning without their hosts. The Legislature is Goebel and for Blackburn by a large majority.

WE fear our old friend, W. M. Finley, is going from bad to worse. He is now managing editor of the Louisville Dispatch and may God have mercy on his soul, for democrats will not.

THE State election board will meet tomorrow and remain in session till the election returns are canvassed and the results obtained. Mr. Goebel and his admirable ticket have, no doubt, a majority of the honest vote and they will be given the certificates, if they are found so to have, notwithstanding the threats and other means of intimidation adopted by the unscrupulous republicans. Till then let us possess our souls in peace and not get excited.

THE Somerset Paragon grows funny at our expense, it thinks. But he laughs best who laughs last and we expect to catch him on the final round, Brer. Hansford.

WE were unable to hear from the Frankfort convention this morning, but Col. Allen was leading Gayle and Julian at last accounts.

POLITICIANS AND POLITICS.

David B. Hill pledges himself in advance to the democratic nominee for president next year.

Woodford county instructed 4 for Gayle, 2 for Julian and 1 for Allen. Scott did not instruct.

Ed Parker, of London, is at Washington making a canvass for Sergeant-at-arms of the next House.

THE Richmond Pantagraph thinks Mr. P. M. McRoberts would look and act mighty well in the National House.

Gen. H. B. Lyon, Representative-elect from Lyon and Marshall counties, will be a candidate for Speaker of the House.

Col. John R. Allen carried 19 of the 22 precincts in Fayette, over J. H. Mulligan and the county's full vote, 20, therefore went to him.

McChord's majority is 1,625 over Irwin. It is said that the latter will run for Congress in the Louisville district if Oscar Turner is unseated.

The announcement is made that C. W. Metcalf and Hal Corbett, bolters in the recent campaign, have returned to their first love, which is not important if true.

The court of appeals adjourned for Thanksgiving without deciding the political questions of injunctions, &c., presented to it, but took them under advisement.

Calvin Dewolf, one of the earliest of western abolitionists, was found dead in bed at Chicago, aged 84. In 1840 he became secretary of the anti-slavery society of Chicago.

Meetings were held at Hopkinsville, Kuttawa and Winchester, which adopted resolutions denouncing Gov. Bradley and Judge Toney, and calling on the State election board to throw out fraudulent votes.

The Clipper sees no reason to abandon its belief that Mr. Goebel has received a majority of the legal votes cast at the recent election, and that the State board will justly give him the certificate.—Midway Clipper.

The president has appointed ex-representative Josiah Patterson, of Tennessee, a member of the Shiloh Park Battle Field Commission. Patterson is the rooster who galloped up and down the country making speeches for the Palmer ticket.

Judge Kimbrough issued an order compelling the county board to count the votes of the 4th ward in Cynthiana, which gave Taylor 133 plurality, and will reduce Goebel's plurality in the county from 918 to 785. The democrats have taken the case to the court of appeals.

Hush now, honey, and listen at this: Prominent republicans who have been in Attorney General Taylor's councils say the latter is preparing an inaugural address and will deliver it in the State-house yard Dec. 12, whether he is given a certificate of election by the State Board or not.

Henry C. Payne, of Wisconsin, will offer a resolution at the meeting of the republican National committee to change the basis of representation at National conventions. The plan, if adopted, would materially reduce the delegations from Southern States, while increasing them in a number of Northern States.

Judge Breckinridge expressed himself to an Advocate representative as being perfectly satisfied that Mr. Goebel and the entire democratic ticket would be properly and promptly sworn into office at the right time. As Judge Breckinridge is one of those most interested, and as he is also a lawyer of eminent ability, his opinion must be taken seriously.—Advocate.

Richard Croker, the Tammany chief, talked to a reporter as follows: "I want to say before my departure for Europe that William J. Bryan will be the standard bearer of the democratic party in the next National campaign. The fight will be made against trusts and imperialism; Bryan is the only man to lead such a fight. Tammany Hall will give him her heartiest support; you may rest assured of that."

The Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The republicans are at a loss for congressional material in the 7th district. There is scarcely a strong man of the party in the district who is yearning for a race with whoever the democrats nominate. Even Judge Holt has intimated that he is not hankering after the office just at this time. R. P. Stoll, of Lexington, has declined the nomination. So now it looks as if the republicans will fuse with the Brownies who will in all likelihood put up W. C. Owens."

A HIGH COMPLIMENT.—After listening to his speech at the dedication of the Houses of Reform Tuesday an old man went up to Gov. Bradley and shook hands with him saying, "I am a democrat and voted against you, but I am sorry now I did. Why didn't you run again?" "The constitution forbids that," replied the governor, when the old man said with warmth, "D—n the constitution, I want you to be governor as long as you live."

MARSHAL J. A. SHANNON, of Crab Orchard, turned over to Jailer DeBord Tuesday afternoon Tom Welch and Jim Gray, both colored. The latter stole a pistol from a Negro woman named Peggy Welch, and in searching Tom Welch's house, where Gray was, for it, he found a gross of half pint bottles that had been taken out of Curtis Gover's saloon the night before. Welch claims that Gray brought them to his house and Gray says he didn't, so Mr. Shannon brought both of them along and they will have their examining trial today.

BADLY HURT.—While getting out rock on Frank McKinney's place, George Middleton and Logan Whitley, both colored, were seriously hurt. They had placed a lot of powder in the drilled hole but the fuse went out and it did not explode. Instead of pouring water in on it, Middleton drilled on and in the explosion that followed he was frightfully cut about the face and hands, an elbow was broken and it was first thought his eyes were put out. Whitley, who was standing some eight feet away, had a knee considerably hurt, a shin badly skinned and two of his toes were cut off. They were brought to town and surgical assistance rendered and are doing as well as could be expected. The doctors are not certain that Middleton's sight can be entirely restored.

IN '49.—A copy of the Kentucky Yoeman, published at Frankfort, by Wm. Tanney and W. W. Stapp, and dated June 21, 1849, was sent us by Mrs. Mary J. Murphy. It tells of the death of ex-President Polk at his home in Nashville, the Friday before, June 15th, and encloses the article in inverted rules. The killing of Wm. E. Blackburn, of Louisiana, by Thomas Steele at Harmony Meeting House in Woodford county is also noted, as is also the duel on Six Mile Island in the Ohio, in which John T. Gray killed Capt. H. C. Pope, who fell at the first fire. He requested then to see Mr. Gray and a most affecting reconciliation occurred. The paper goes for Gen. Taylor, the then president, who was breaking every pledge made to democrats, whose support secured his election. The first page of the paper is devoted to the last of a series of articles on Slavery, "By a Friend of the Negro," in which the writer opposed the proposition to send the Negroes back to Africa.

THANKSGIVING DAY was remarkable for two things, a cloudless sky with pleasant weather and its almost paralyzing quietness. A good many heard a splendid sermon by Rev. F. W. Allen at the Presbyterian church, but the largest number went hunting, turkey shooting and to the ball game at Danville.

GANO.—Col. Welch received a dispatch from Arlington, Texas, yesterday telling him of the sudden death of his niece, Mrs. Clara Helm Gano, who was a daughter of the late Mrs. E. T. Rochester by her first husband, Henry Helm. She married a son of Gen. R. M. Gano, a number of years ago and moved to Texas. Her husband died leaving her with three children. The remains, of course, will be buried with those of her husband and mother in Texas. Mrs. Gano was a lovely woman and had many friends here, who will grieve to learn that she is no more.

Houses Of Reform.

A Most Auspicious Opening

Of A Long Needed Institution.

Governor Bradley And Others Speak.

CEREMONIES MOST IMPRESSIVE.

The dedication of the House of Reform and the formal turning over of the institution by the trustees to Gov. William O. Bradley for the State, Tuesday, marked a memorable epoch in the history of Kentucky and the exercises were as pleasant and profitable as they were impressive and important to this and succeeding generations. The events of the day began with the arrival of Gov. Bradley and staff, who were escorted to the Phoenix, where an informal reception was held, after which an elegant 12 o'clock breakfast, with covers laid for 20, in honor of the governor, was served in eight courses as follows:

Blue Points on the half shell.
Olives and Celery.
Clear Soup.
Broiled Fish and Browned Potatoes.
French Peas, Puddies and Cream Sauce.
Turkey, Cranberry Sauce, side dishes of vegetables.
Sherbet in cups; Assorted Cake.
Coffee, with Crackers and Rocheford Cheese.

Those who enjoyed the feast were Gov. W. O. Bradley, Mrs. L. E. Yandell, president of the board; Mrs. F. E. Beauchamp, secretary; William Worthington, treasurer; Mrs. William Cheatham, D. H. Howard and W. P. Walton members of the board; Mrs. William Worthington, Mrs. B. B. Huntoon; Mrs. W. P. Walton, Gen. Wilbur R. Smith, Cols. Stoll, Hazelton, Brent and Dickey, of the Governor's staff; Prof. B. B. Huntoon, of the blind school, Louisville; Prof. Peter Caldwell, of the Louisville Reform School; Fred Ballard, of The Leader; Wood Ballard and C. E. Richards, architect of buildings.

An hour or more was spent in enjoyment of the repast and general conversation, after which the party, with a large number of others, took carriages for the Houses of Reform, which are located on a splendid 200 acre farm four and one-half miles from Lexington, on the Greendale Pike.

Arriving there, Supt. E. H. Doak invited the guests to an upper room of the Manual Training building, where the exercises were held. In addition to the several hundred persons present, the 50-odd white and colored boys who had been removed from the penitentiary, and divested of ignominious stripes, were interested listeners.

Saxton's splendid Orchestra gave a number of selections and then Rev. W. F. V. Bartlett, of the Presbyterian church, invoked the Divine blessing on the occasion and on the noble institution and the children it is to rescue from crime and make good citizens of.

Mrs. L. E. Yandell, the president of the board of trustees, in a modest and well-modulated voice, spoke in behalf of the board as follows:

These ceremonies do not mark the completion, they merely note the beginning of a great undertaking. All around you are evidences of unfinished enterprises. This farm, this house, that power building, constitute the foundations of what is to be a School of Reform, established by the State for the salvation of neglected children, for the education of men and women who, instead of being a burden, are to be an honor and a help to the community in which they live.

Nearly a generation ago, Kentucky began to build a School of Reform, and because our people had not counted the cost, the work languished. Its promoters, discouraged by public indifference finally abandoned the work to those who were to come after them.

For one generation we have done nothing in this direction. What was intended as a school for neglected boys and girls became at Anchorage, an asylum for men and women worn out in the struggle for life.

Another generation passed, knowing nothing of what science and philanthropy, that is knowledge and love, were doing in other States for children whose inheritances and whose surroundings were dragging or driving the idle into paths of crime.

Now once again we begin the work of character building. We take the evil-minded or the unfortunate from their old haunts and bring them under the influence of industry and of education, aiming to make of those possible criminals, men and women whose character are formed by self-knowledge, self-reverence and self-control.

The trustees of this institution, who have labored during the past four years to expend for the best results what the State has permitted us to expend, ask all here present and that great audience whom they represent beyond these walls, that the work here begun be not allowed to fall away for lack of means to carry it to a noble end. Such an institution as this bears testimony to the character of our civilization. No State is great, or prominent where there is ever a class, however small, even of criminals for whom there is no hope of redemption. Our own self-interest must in time impel us to actions that will reduce the evil elements among us, and above self interest is that instinct of human nature which acknowledges that in the highest sense we are our Brother's Keepers.

It is from the young that crime makes its recruits. That great army of lawless men and women which haunts our cities has its recruiting stations in every town and village of Kentucky. It is calling to the young by every enticement to join those ranks in a warfare against all that is good in modern society.

The work of this institution is to counteract this temptation, to give to all who enter these walls the knowledge and the power that will enable them to resist that call to indolence and to crime. We think the work here has been perfectly begun. These buildings, as you see them, speak full well of the work of the architects. They are the best results of years of experience elsewhere in similar institutions.

Underlying all that has been done is a purpose most clearly defined. Utility is first of all the aim in every public institution, but through art alone is the highest utility reached, with the least expenditure of labor. We deem ourselves peculiarly fortunate in the selection of our superintendent.

The trustees desire especially, in making this report and this appeal to the State, to express to the Governor of the State their high appreciation of all that he has done to give form and effect to the law which called this institution into existence. In season and out of season he has labored to secure for the State an institution which would best serve the great purpose to which it is dedicated; and now as the official term of Governor Bradley draws to a close, he has a right to point to this Industrial School as one of the brightest achievements of philanthropy in the history of this State.

These doors are now open to the wrong-doers among the young. It is to be a very beacon of hope to those on whose path rests the shadow of evil deeds. Here they are to be taught to think on whatsoever things are true, on whatsoever things are honest, just and of good report, and taught to believe that no path is closed to any one who, forsaking evil ways, would live the life of self-respecting, self-supporting men and women.

We, the trustees, have the honor to present to you and the State this Institution, the result of our best thought.

Gov. Bradley never writes out his speeches and unfortunately there was no stenographer present to take down his admirable response, which, however, was in substance about as follows:

The people of Lexington and Fayette county have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the establishment of these houses of reform in their midst, for it was by their liberality in subscribing for their erection that they were located here. It is an institution of which they will be proud in years to come. The board of trustees, and especially the good women on this board, are to be congratulated upon this work, for upon their efforts is due to a large extent the success of this formal beginning of this benevolent institution. The gentlemen of the board, also, are entitled to praise for giving their time and efforts to its establishment. One of them, particularly, having in addition, through his paper, helped to awaken public sentiment to a need of the institution; for which he deserves the thanks of the State. For more than 26 years I have advocated such a school of reform. I have seen the injustice of placing young boys in the State prison by the side of old and hardened criminals, and am convinced that the most expert criminals of our State today are those who have received their training in our penitentiaries when they were young. When I was informed some time ago that a nine-year-old child had been placed within the walls of a State prison, I at once had him sent home.

But for this school of reform I claim no credit for myself. I suggested; others have performed. I merely communicated with the Legislature, calling their attention to the great need of such an institution; others have carried out the work. The credit is due to these good women here, the board of trustees and to the efforts of your distinguished Senator, C. J. Bronston.

To the boys who are already in these buildings and to the boys and girls who are to come here in the future, I want to speak a word. Don't feel that by being here you are disgraced and that you have no future before you. Such is not the purpose of this institution. I am glad that you are out of the walls of the penitentiary and I trust that you will bury as deeply as possible the memories of the days you passed there. It is not written over the doors of this building, "Abandon hope all who enter here," but you will see over these doors, this is a "Manual Training School." It means that this is to be your home and that you are to have an opportunity of preparing yourself for future usefulness and power and that you are to be instructed in all that goes to make up a perfect man. You are not to be discouraged, for you are to be given advantages that you have never had in the past. I have learned that the greater percent. of the youthful offenders are those who are orphans and have never had the guidance of a mother, and I am told that almost without exception these children are wholly without education. It is the purpose of this institution to supply both. There is an old story which says that the mother was placed in this world to take the place of the angels that lived in the one before this. We cannot place these boys and girls in the hands of their own mothers, but they are to be guided and instructed by good, kind women, whose instincts are motherly and whose purposes are to lift up the fallen.

During my term of office as governor I have attended many State occasions of importance, but to me this is the occasion of all occasions. At one occasion I was present at the christening of the great battleship which bears the name of our Commonwealth. It was an impressive scene as the great hull glided out into the waves; it was an occasion when Kentucky was honored by others. Another occasion was on the field of Chickamauga, when we unveiled a monument to the memory of our dead sons who were there on both sides. That was an occasion when Kentucky honored herself. The formal opening of this reform school is a greater occasion than all. Kentucky not only honors herself, but she stoops to lend a helping hand to others and lift them up to something higher.

I am about to lay down the duties of my office as governor of the Commonwealth, but before I have done so I am glad that I came here today. It will always be one of the most pleasing recollections of my service to you that I assisted in the dedication of this school of reform, which is an honor to our State and a credit to her civilization.

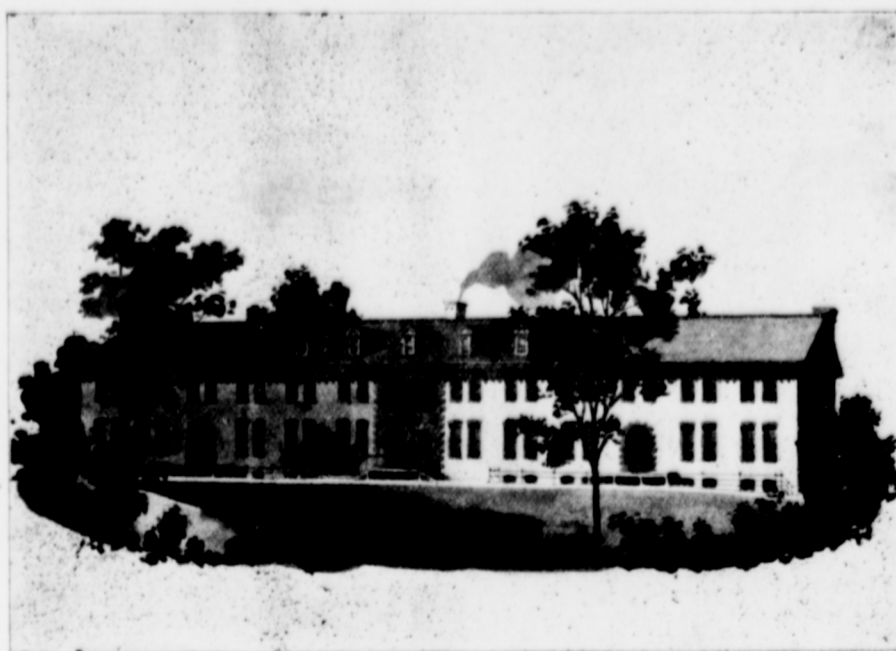

The speech, which was delivered with impressive earnestness and eloquence, was many times applauded and most heartily so at its close.

Senator Bronston being unable to fill his place on the program, Mrs. Beauchamp was asked to speak, which she did as follows:

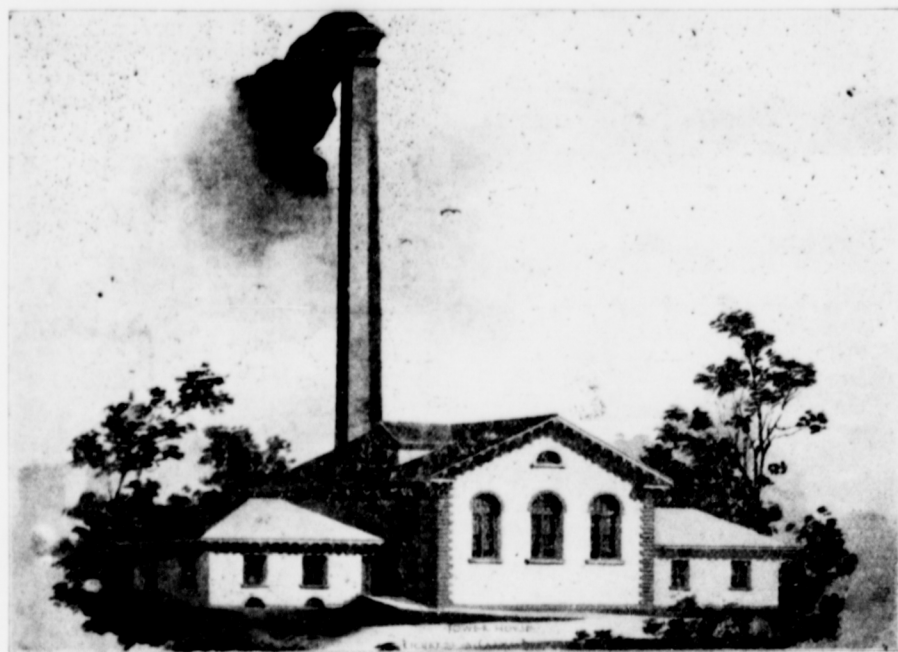

To my mind there is only one thing that could have made this occasion more complete—the presence of Hon. C. J. Bronston, whose place on the program I am to fill.

For ten years I have looked forward with prayerful hope to this hour. Ten years ago I visited the State penitentiary at Frankfort and was deeply impressed by seeing such a large number of children among the convicts there who were condemned because they had never had a chance. I thought it a disgrace to Kentucky that these boys should be compelled to hold daily conversations with hardened criminals and resolved that one effort of my life should be to try to remedy this grievous evil.

tution of this Commonwealth making it obligatory upon the Legislature to establish a reform school in this State. I thanked God and took courage when the cause of the reformatory movement had such an able advocate in Mr. Bronston, and the one thing I regret at this time is that he is not present to tell us of his efforts in this regard. Such a bill was introduced in the Legislature and passed the Senate, but was defeated in the House. * *

During the next Legislature, however, Hon. C. J. Bronston, Senator from Fayette, introduced and valiantly championed a bill to establish a house of reform. After this bill passed the Senate he followed it into the House and saw its passage there. In this movement his name will ever be coupled with that of your beloved governor, and together they will illuminate our history as the greatest names that have adorned the roll call of the Commonwealth. We delight to honor our governor and in honoring him we honor ourselves. In all that stands for righteousness and honor and truth none can outshine him, and the best possible wish that any of us can express for his successor is that he may be worthy to succeed.

Mrs. Beauchamp always speaks well and on this occasion did so with unusual eloquence and earnestness.

The trustees had had an excellent portrait of the governor made and assigned Mr. Worthington, of the board, to present it. He did so very eloquently, as follows:

It is fitting on this day that some mark of appreciation should be given by this Board of Trustees of the consideration which it has received at your hands in the performance of its sometimes burdensome labors. To me, representing this board, has been assigned the pleasant duty of giving some expression to this appreciation.

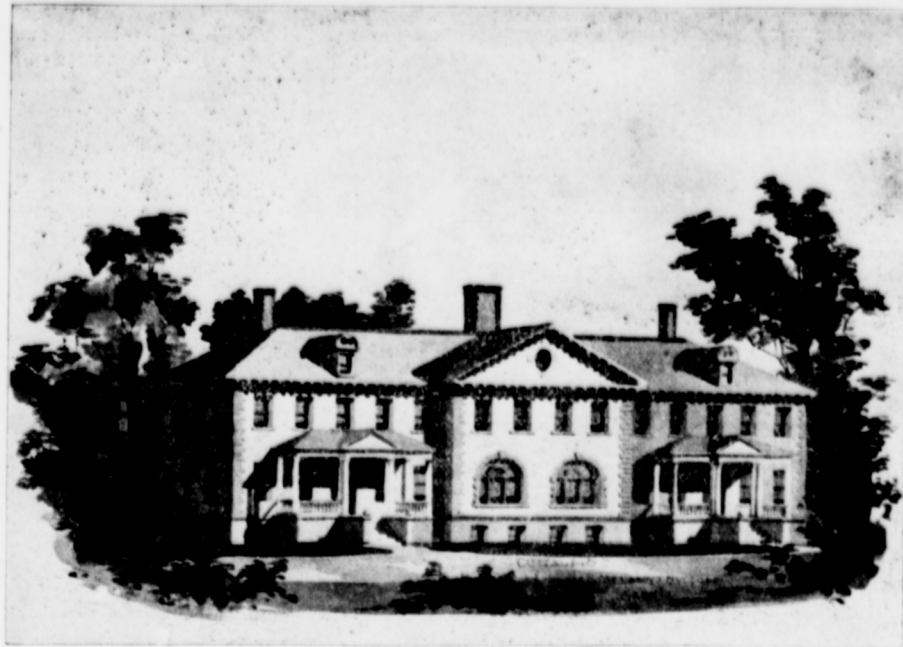

To you, sir, has been given the necessary energy, the noble purpose and the opportunity to carry to a partial completion this much needed work in Kentucky. By the exercise of your high gifts in this direction you have placed under eternal obligations not only the citizens of Kentucky now living, but those thousands yet to come.

If man may speak of things divine, I venture to assert that in the Lamb's Book of Life there is no fairer page than that which records the deeds of those who gave their energies, their gifts, their means and opportunities to the raising of fallen humanity, to the strengthening of the weak, chance to the unfortunate, and purer and better purposes to the vicious young. Hath not Christ said there was more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who was brought into the fold than over the ninety and nine who were not lost?

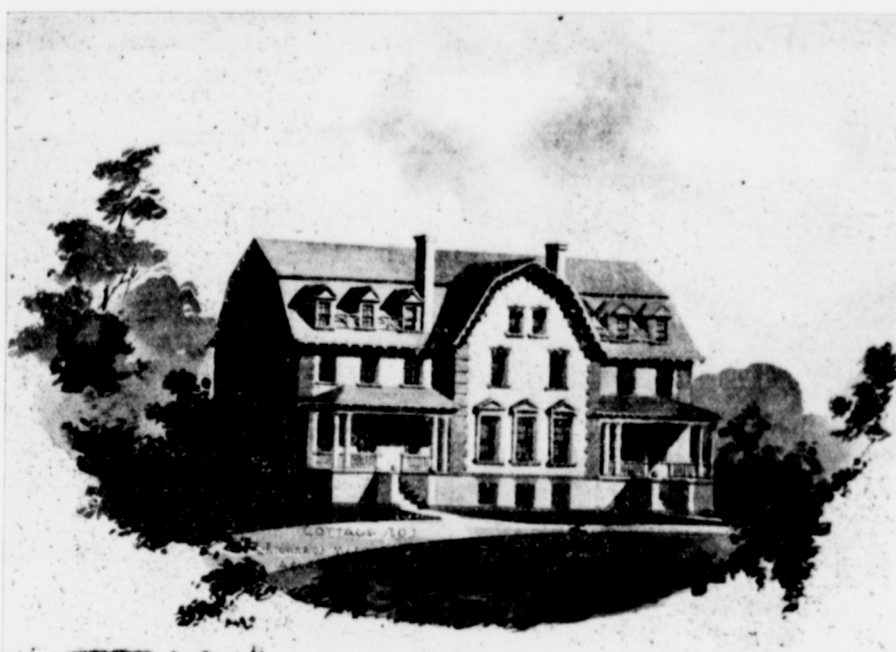

It has been said and truthfully that peace hath her victories no less renowned than war. The plumes of the warrior will crumble to dust, the monuments erected to perpetuate his deeds of valor, time's cease hammer will pound into impalpable dust; the annals of his triumphs will be lost in the vortex of revolutions; but he who builds his monument in the hearts of his people, whose best life work is for the raising up of the fallen, the betterment of humanity, has that monument which shall last second only to the monument of Him who gave his life for erring humanity.

When in after day men shall glance back over life, with the mental question "What has this man done to merit the honor which his people love to shower upon him?" this institution shall stand as an ever living answer among the throng which shall seek to be heard.

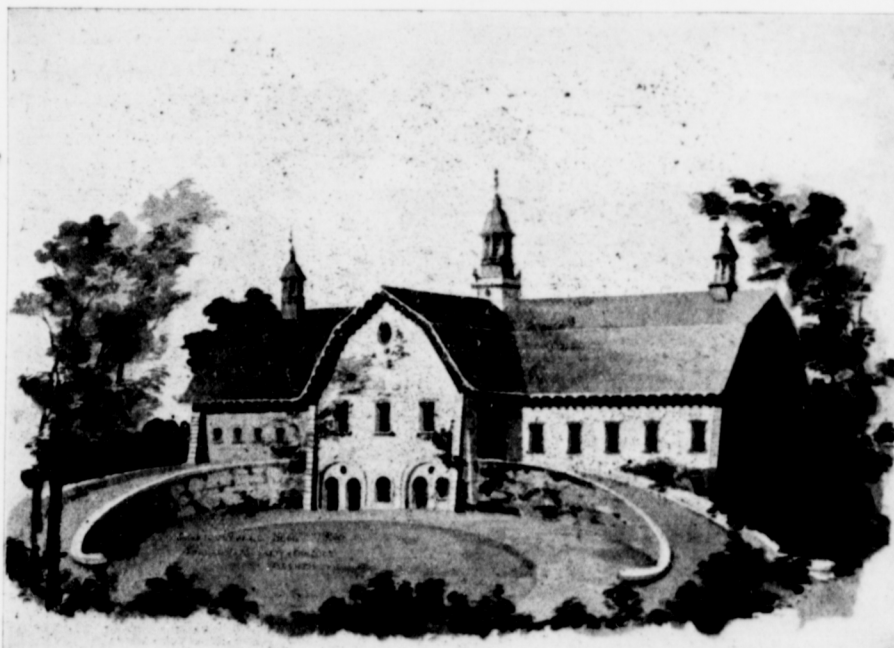

And now as a memorial of your efforts, the exercise of your gifts, in order that the students of the institution and in all time to come may know to whom they are indebted for this school, to whom they owe this great debt of gratitude, I present to this institute this picture. You, sir, will recognize it as the face those dearest to you love so well; this audience will recognize it as the face Kentuckians love to honor and shall ever cherish.

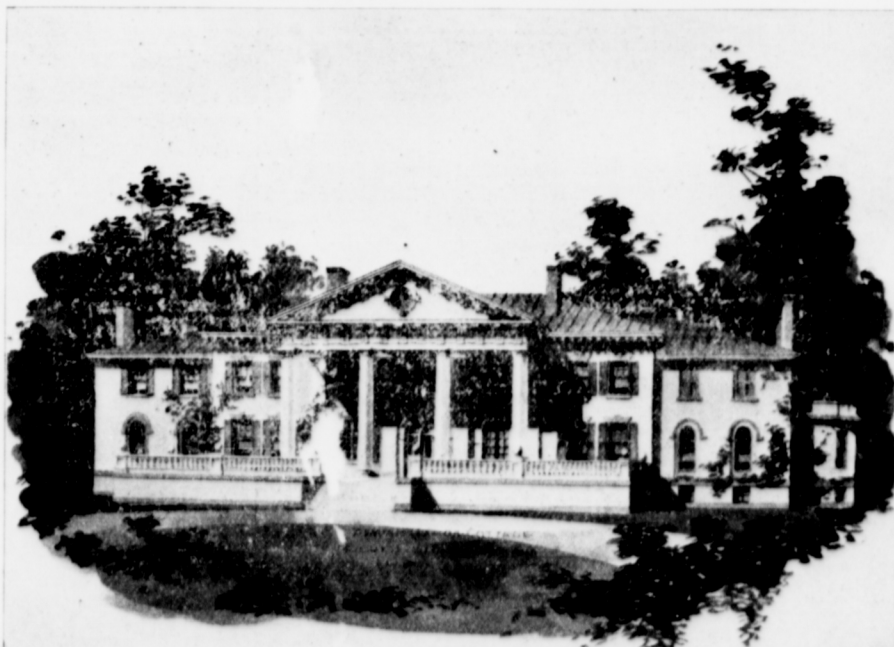

PROPOSED COTTAGE "B" FOR BOYS

PROPOSED COTTAGE NO. 2 FOR GIRLS

PROPOSED AGRICULTURAL BUILDING

PROPOSED ADMINISTRATION COTTAGE

In this, the closing days of your administration, I desire for this board to express conviction and hope that even broader fields may be opened to you in the future for the exercise of your energies, your gifts and your noble purposes.

And in life's golden sunset, when time shall have wiped away all sorrows, and memory shall give up her treasures, I venture to predict that for you no thought shall be sweeter, none fraught with more satisfaction, none over which you shall linger longer, than that during your reign at the helm of State in this our and your loved Kentucky, that through your energy, your purpose, your love for frail humanity this institution had its inception.

After he had concluded Mr. Yandell arose to announce the election, when the governor, choking with emotion, said:

"Before the benediction is pronounced I desire to say one word more to express my sincere thanks and appreciation of the kind words and sentiments here expressed this afternoon. I am nearing the close of a stormy administration and it is most gratifying to feel that my efforts have met with the approval of those most dear to me. In all things I have tried to do my duty.

In this world the highest reward of a man's efforts is the approbation of the people—his greatest reward he hopes for in the world to come. To a man who has held a public trust nothing can be dearer to his heart when he has finished his work than the "Well done, good and faithful servant," spoken by the true and loyal people whom he has tried to serve. This is the commendation I have received from you today. My heart is too full of emotion to say more."

Many other eyes besides the governor's were suffused with tears and there was a most impressive silence for a minute or two. Gov. Bradley is a very big-hearted man and a most appreciative one. He has striven to do his duty as he saw it during the four years of an exciting administration and the plaudits of those he has tried to serve are very grateful to him. The board of trustees would be ingrates if they did not on all occasions publicly acknowledge his great assistance to them in the huge undertaking and his helpful advice on all disputed points.

The benediction was then said and by invitation the visitors, escorted by Supt. Doak, examined the building and its many modern appliances.

The Kentucky Houses of Reform are situated on a farm of 200 acres. The grounds were purchased and the buildings will be partially erected out of an appropriation by the State Legislature several years ago. This appropriation, however, will fall far short of the amount which will be needed to complete all the buildings connected with the institution. An additional appropriation will doubtless be made by the incoming Legislature, and thereby enable the Board of Trustees to finish the school buildings according to present designs.

The prime idea of the institution is that it be a school of reform, and not merely a place of restraint. There will be four double cottages for boys and three single cottages for girls, each cottage having a capacity for 25 persons. The institution has its own electric plant, water works and steam heating apparatus. The filtration system of sewerage will be adopted, it having been proved to be the most advantageous for a place of this description.

The main buildings, the manual training school and the cottages will all be of red brick, and constructed in the Colonial style of architecture. The branches of instruction as outlined at present are scholastic, mechanical, physical, horticultural and agricultural. Other departments will ultimately be added. It will be non-sectarian and non-political. The name will in all probability be changed at the next session of the State Legislature to the Kentucky Industrial School.

The manner in which the grounds have been laid out and the buildings located was governed necessarily by the contour of the farm. They were located with reference to securing perfect drainage and proper and economical distribution of heat and light from a central plant. The buildings are equipped in the most thorough manner, with modern systems of heating, ventilating and electric lighting. All stairways and halls are fire-proof, and nearly all inside partitions are of brick. All expense thus far put upon these buildings and all construction throughout are of such a character that to add to the institution simply means extension of lines for proper connection with the drainage and mechanical plants, and it will never be necessary to remove or destroy anything constructed for the purpose of increasing the capacity of the institution.

SOME HISTORY.

In May, 1896, when the writer received a notice from Gov. Bradley of his appointment to a membership on the board of trustees, he was surprised and gratified because of the mark of favor from a friend. But had we known the trials and tribulations that the place would bring, we would have declined it with thanks. The other members at first appointed were Mrs. Yandell, Mrs. Cheatham, Mrs. Sophia Charles, B. T. Conway and D. H. Howard, and the first meeting was in June, 1896, when Mrs. Cheatham was elected president, Mr. Howard treasurer and the writer secretary. Afterwards Mr. Conway resigned, Mrs. Charles' term expired and Mr. Wm. Worthington and Mrs. Frances F. Beauchamp were made members and Mrs. Yandell was elected president. Before we could make the appropriation available a suit had to be prosecuted against the auditor to compel him to pay it. This took a year, there was difficulty in securing a farm at the proper distance from a corporate limits and the trustees experienced many other troubles, with which the people are not familiar and of which it is not now necessary to tell. We all feel, however, repaid for all the vexations and delays we have experienced and are proud to have served the State, which we trust is as acceptable as the service has been faithful.

The board was peculiarly fortunate in securing the services of such an experienced architect as Mr. C. E. Richards, of Richards, McCarty & Bulford, of Columbus, O., whose work and assistance has been of incalculable benefit to the members. He is at the top in his profession and as architect of the Industrial School for Boys at Lancaster, O., and other similar institutions, has had large experience in this special line of work.

In Supt. Doak the trustees think they have the right man in the right place. He is from the Tennessee Industrial School and he and his good wife were almost raised up in the noble work.

The employees of the institution at present are: E. H. Doak, Superintendent, Mrs. Doak, Matron.

Caretakers—Charles Hughes, L. J. Speak and R. L. Mains.

Teachers—Miss Fannie Gunt, Miss Mary P. Chambers and Miss Belle Halliday.

Charge of the Sewing Room—Mrs. P. S. Rule.

Chief Engineer—John Llewellyn.

Chief Carpenter—Ernest Bell.

Superintendent Boiler Rooms—Jas. S. Haley.

Mr. F. T. Ballard did the "write-up" for the Lexington Leader and had the paper telling of it all on the streets for sale, when the party returned to the city.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way. It creeps its way along.

First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats.

The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage. Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping. You can do it with

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

You first notice that you cough less. The pressure on the chest is lifted. That feeling of suffocation is removed. A cure is hastened by placing one of

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster over the Chest.

The position is an office one and Mr. McKinney accepts it because it pays better than his present, which he has held so faithfully and well for many years. Fact is the bank without Mr. McKinney in it will hardly look like itself. He has been with it almost since its inception and we have often heard him say he helped carry the bricks to the masons that built the building in which the bank is kept. Already there are several applicants for his place.

"YOU must excuse me this time," said Mr. William Royston to our business manager at Lancaster Monday, "I usually pay for my paper October court and I am a month late this year." The clever gentleman's INTERIOR JOURNAL does not expire till Jan. 1st, but he seems to be so afraid he will owe somebody something he never even lets his subscription get in the neighborhood of out before paying for another year. Would there were more men like Mr. Royston.

OLD FILES—We are indebted to Mr. John S. Hughes for files of the INTERIOR JOURNAL printed before it was purchased Feb. 5, 1875 by the present owner. The paper was started in March 1872 by Messrs. Extracts, which will be of interest alike to those who remember the incidents and those who never heard of them before, will be made from time to time.
